

Jack Quinby returns for a second year at Tunes on Tuesday

Soothing simple tunes on a sultry summer evening —

Jack Quinby and his orchestra performed music dating back to the 1920s, and some more contemporary pieces as well, during this week's installment of Tunes on Tuesday at Rotary Centennial Park in Newberg. Up next is Newberg native Ben Rice.

Gary Allen /
NEWBERG
GRAPHIC

Concert series — Hundreds enjoy a summer evening listening to big band music and soaking in the ambiance

AMANDA KATE WINKELMAN
Newberg Graphic Intern
nwinkler@newberggraphic.com

Tuesday was another great night for an outdoor concert and while Jack Quinby band's sheet music was getting ruffled in the breeze, senior citizens were clapping and even dancing to the music.

For the second year in a row, Visiting Angels home care providers, sponsored Jack Quinby and his orchestra to perform, said Francisco Stoller director of the Tunes on Tuesday committee. Local senior citizens visiting from nearby assisted living homes came out to the Rotary Centennial Park.

Jack Quinby runs Jack Quinby's musical services out of Dundee. His orchestra performed music dating back to the 1920s and some more contemporary pieces as well.

"Jack Quinby is an extremely classy performer," said Stoller. "And Shirley Nanette sang and her voice is incredible."

Stoller said the committee was trying to target a specific demographic within the community. This particular style is something seniors could appreciate and enjoy, he said, adding that the committee wanted to find a

Please see
TUNES, pg. A10

INDEX

CALENDAR	A3
CLASSIFIED ADS	A12
COMMUNITY BRIEFS	A3
RELIGION	A7
SPORTS	A16
VIEWPOINT	A4

0008826702365